STS is 800-22 (or an implementation of the tests described in 800-22). I think all the errata stuff has been incorporated into the document now. Don't need that file.

You can delete/remove the TWG one.

I would say that we can delete the battery of tests one as well.

The last one describes the tests in the STS so that page is still useful. ← Is that part of 800-22?

And should this errata still be available:

Larry,

Resending in case the old email got lost – what are your thoughts on migrating the three web pages below to the new site? Are they relevant? Elaine deferred these to you.

Thanks,
Sara

Larry,

Elaine deferred these questions to you (or John)

http://csrc.nist.gov/groups/ST/toolkit/rng/rng_twg.html

Is this TWG still active? We currently list you and Larry, as POCs, on the main RBG page. I have no idea, but I expect not. Confirm with Larry.

Only a couple of the links on this page still hit relevant sites. Is it information worth keeping? Ask John Kelsey and Larry Bassham

http://csrc.nist.gov/groups/ST/toolkit/rng/stats_tests.html

Still relevant? Or is this also a Kelsey/Bassham question? Larry seems to have been taking care of this stuff, so please ask him.

Just working on migrating the last few things over – if they are still necessary.

Sara
